What Works Best 2025

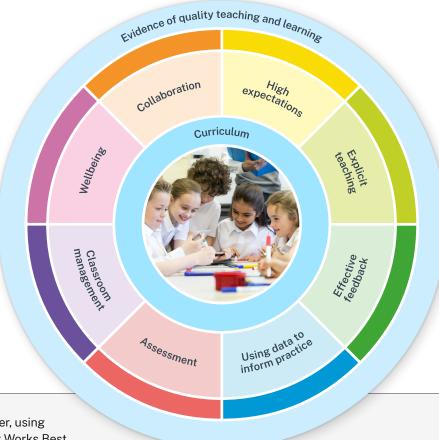

Centre for Education Statistics and Evaluation

What Works Best is a suite of resources for teachers and school leaders that outlines 8 of the most effective practices to improve student learning outcomes.

- High expectations: teachers provide challenging and ambitious learning activities that help students meet their full potential through consistent effort and improvement.
- Explicit teaching: teachers clearly explain, model and demonstrate new concepts. while providing timely, targeted feedback. Students are given adequate time to ask questions, act on feedback, and apply their knowledge through practice.
- Effective feedback: teachers provide students with relevant, constructive and specific information about their performance on a task, against learning outcomes from the syllabus or clearly defined success criteria.
- Using data to inform practice: teachers and school leaders use data to monitor and analyse student learning and wellbeing, to inform decision-making to improve student and school outcomes.

- Assessment: teachers regularly monitor student progress using a mix of assessment approaches, to inform their next steps in teaching, determine the effectiveness of teaching strategies and provide evidence of student understanding.
- Classroom management: teachers create the conditions for learning by minimising disruptions, maximising instruction time and encouraging students to engage in learning.
- Wellbeing: teachers and school leaders facilitate student wellbeing through a sense of belonging, an ongoing commitment to cultural inclusivity, promoting positive relationships and supporting student resilience.
- Collaboration: teachers and school leaders work together to share evidence-informed practices, knowledge and problem-solving to achieve agreed learning goals.

The 8 What Works Best practices

These practices will have the most impact on educational outcomes when implemented together, using whole-school approaches. Excellence and equity go hand-in-hand, and the content of the What Works Best resources strongly supports Our Plan for NSW Public Education.
