

Empower students

Identify, acknowledge and develop students' character and learning strengths

Consult with students on decisions that impact them

Involve students and their families in the development of plans that promote safety, achievement, and responsibility

Provide social-emotional learning and skill development

Actively include student autonomy, agency, voice and participation

*Note: some students may be distressed or uncomfortable with physical touch. Always talk to the student and their family about what kinds of prompts/communication they feel are most suited to their individual needs.
