Applying for my child to attend an opportunity class or selective high school

Why selective education?

Grouping high potential and gifted students together and using special teaching methods supports their:

- academic development
- emotional wellbeing; and
- friendships and social life.

Students tell us that they enjoy learning more when their classmates have similar abilities and interests.

Is it right for my child?

Here are some signs that your child may benefit from selective education.

learns quickly and easily

highly motivated

asks complex questions

good memory

curious and creative

deeply explores interests

Keep in mind, some children's high potential may be hidden. Being in an opportunity class or selective high school could help.

How can I support my child through the application process?

Talk to your child about the benefits and challenges of selective education and address their questions and concerns.

Ask your child's teacher (or other staff who know them well) whether they think selective education will suit your child.

Apply for any required reasonable adjustments for disability or medical conditions.

Encourage your child to use the department's free resources to prepare for the test.

Remind your child they only need to do a small amount of preparation for the placement test, and don't need coaching.

Support your child to continue extracurricular activities, see friends, eat healthily and sleep well in the lead-up to the test.

The Equity Placement Model reserves up to 20% of places in opportunity classes and selective high schools for high potential and gifted:

- students from low socio-educational advantage backgrounds
- Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander students
- students from rural and remote locations
