Delivering funding certainty

In its 9th year our needs-based Resource Allocation Model (RAM) continues to deliver funding to where it is needed the most.

The RAM uses a base and loadings approach to ensure a fair and transparent allocation of funding to support the learning needs of all students.

Spending today’s funds on today’s students

In 2022, $1.34B in RAM loadings will be delivered through the RAM with a total of $80.5B going out through the SBAR to schools. The funding will be strategically invested so that students benefit in the year the funding is delivered.

The funding delivers critical resourcing to schools to be strategically invested and aligned to the School Improvement Plan (SIP).

Schools benefit from more than $100 million including increased funding through the equity loading for socio-economic background and per capita loading.

The final loadings were introduced:
- Per capita
- Professional learning

The initial loadings introduced:
- English language proficiency
- Low level adjustment for disability
- Location
