Review:
Big art, small art
MANCO, Tristan

In the words of Robert Smithson, size determines an object, but scale determines art. Underscoring this pivotal notion of perception, this publication examines the creative use of scale in contemporary art, ranging from painting, photography, sculpture and installation to alternative architecture, street art and collaborative interventions.

Inspirational works from a diversity of artists and localities are presented within the context of globalisation, prompting students and teachers to consider how the digital realm is affecting the way we use and interact with space, whether virtual or physical, immersive or intimate. Informative essays introduce the concepts of big and small art and, combined with profiles highlighting each artist’s distinctive voice and intentions, signal engaging artmaking and critical thinking big & re-imagining spaces.

Teaching and learning opportunities:
• Define scale, brainstorming everyday examples that demonstrate this concept.
• Discuss how globalisation, including the rapid rise of digital communication and travel networks, has impacted the way we use, interact with, experience and perceive space, whether virtual, physical, individual or collective. Consider how this informs the practice of artists who aim to explore the sensory potential of materials and provoke audiences to re-engage with the physical world.
• Investigate how artists integrate artworks directly into the fabric of spaces, dissolving boundaries between inside and outside, positive and negative, and public and private.
• Use objects en masse to construct a large-scale sculpture or immersive installation that challenges physical boundaries and spatial relationships. Simple, lightweight items such as blown up plastic bags or styrofoam packaging can be used as repeated elements of shape, colour and texture. Refer to Pascale Marthine Tayou, the BEAMS arts festival, Nike Savvas’ Full of love, full of wonder (2005) and Choi Jeong-Hwa’s Kabbala (2013). Alternatively, string or textiles can be woven across boundaries and spatial relationships.
• Define the impossible appear possible by inverting everyday spaces or situations. Experiments in collage, packaging can be used as repeated elements of shape, colour and texture. Refer to Pascale Marthine Tayou, the BEAMS arts festival, Nike Savvas’ Full of love, full of wonder (2005) and Choi Jeong-Hwa’s Kabbala (2013). Alternatively, string or textiles can be woven across boundaries and spatial relationships.

Curriculum springboard

Photography, digital imaging, animation or video could involve scenarios where up is down, inside is out or gravity is ambiguous. Windows, doors, floors, walls, ceilings, mirrors or other structures could be positioned in unexpected ways to disrupt audiences’ notion of reality. Refer to the concept of trompe l’oeil and the work of Jean-François, Leandro Erlich and Philippe Ramette.

- Play with perceptions of scale by juxtaposing disproportionate objects or figures to transport audiences to a fantastical world reminiscent of Gulliver’s travels or Alice in wonderland. Everyday objects could be dramatically up-sized or downsized in digital or sculptural form to contrast with human scale and a Mad Hatter’s tea party could even be staged similar to Lilian Bourgeat’s Le dîner de Gulliver (Gulliver’s dinner, 2008).
- Transform subjects into artworks larger than life. Large-scale composite portraits can be collaboratively assembled using symbolic materials, similar to the work of Jorge Rodríguez-Gerada and Vik Muniz. Sheets of coloured card or packaging could be sculpted to form giant caricatures akin to the busts of José Lerma. Recycled textiles could be used to create soft sculptures based on exaggerated everyday objects inspired by Claes Oldenburg.
- Zoom in on the microscopic and overlooked, staging miniature worlds that encompass intriguing details, childhood memories, fictional narratives or paradoxical humour. Refer to Thomas Doyle, Liliana Porter, Kendal Murray, Slinkachu, Christopher Boffoli, Joe Fig and Diem Chau’s carved pencil leads. Train model figurines can be used to stage Liliputian scenes that could be documented using macro photography, point of view and depth of field. Alternatively, surveillance footage shot from a bird’s eye perspective can be overlaid with omnipotent hands, as in June Bum Park’s Ill crossing (2002).
- Analyse how artists instil immaterial or elemental components in their work, such as water and natural cycles, to transcend boundaries of time and space, and allow their installations to be shaped by nature itself. Consider Fujiko Nakaya’s fog sculptures, the underwater sculptures of Jason deCaires Taylor and Motoi Yamamoto’s Return to the sea project.
- Utilise substances that are easily spread or shaped, such as salt and coloured sand, to create temporary site-specific installations. Stencil particles onto the ground, similar to Cal Lane’s Sand lace (2012) or apply them in a fashion similar to the work of Motoi Yamamoto. Refer to the concept of Karesansui or Zen rock gardens that symbolise stylised landscapes.
- Re-imagine the spaces we live in, investigating how we relate to them emotionally and perceive individual and collective space. Consider natural or human habitations, such as nests, houses, temporary shelters and urban structures. Design a home, place or landscape inspired by Pascale Marthine Tayou’s Home sweet home (2011), Benjamin Verdonck’s The great swallow, Rotterdam (2008), Nikolay Polissky’s alternative architecture, Do-ho Suh, Yin Xiuzhen’s portable cities or Gaston Bachelard’s The poetics of space (1994).
- Weave a visual narrative by adopting an object or series of objects as a symbolic motif or metaphor for a storyline or sequence of events. Refer to Kurt Perschke’s RedBall project and Albert Lamorisse’s film Le ballon rouge (The red balloon, 1956).
- Experiment with negative and positive forms, similar to the silhouette leaf works of Jenny Lee Fowler and Lorenzo Manuel Durán, and the carved book sculptures of Guy Laramée.
- Research a particular community space or streetscape through site visits, surveys and interviews with locals. Propose an urban or street art initiative to transform the space, comment on a local issue and/or promote a collective sense of identity. Consider Boa Mistura’s typographic interventions, Evol’s appropriation of street furniture, and temporary collaborative installations such as yarn bombing.
- Debate the design philosophy less is more, comparing the intentions, nature and impact of big versus small art.
